Degree Programs

The School of Journalism offers Bachelor of Arts degrees in Print Journalism, Broadcast Journalism and Public Relations. It also offers minors in News Media and Society and Advertising. At the graduate level, Master of Arts degrees are awarded in Journalism, Specialized Journalism and Strategic Public Relations. Students completing the M.A. in Journalism must select an emphasis in print, broadcast or online. Journalism students learn the basic techniques of writing, reporting and production across all new media in print, broadcast and online. They also learn about the role of a free press in a democracy and the historical, legal and ethical aspects of journalism. The Print Journalism emphasis includes advanced courses in writing, reporting and editing for newspapers and magazines. The Broadcast Journalism emphasis includes advanced courses in radio and television news, documentary and public affairs. The Online Journalism emphasis provides a thorough grounding in Web site production combining traditional journalism with the ability to think flexibly in an interactive technical environment. The Specialized Journalism degree is designed for mid-career professionals and recent journalism graduates interested in developing specialized reporting expertise.

*Recipient of university-wide or college teaching award.

The Strategic Public Relations degree emphasizes the requisite skills of that discipline, with an emphasis on strategic problem solving, public relations theory and techniques, writing, research-based planning and analysis, case studies, and the application of the discipline to specific industry categories.

The school stresses a broad-based liberal arts education to enhance writing and reporting, and encourages undergraduate students to pursue double majors or minors in disciplines outside the school. In addition to offering international study programs, the school also provides specialized reporting classes in government and public affairs, international affairs, science, religion, education, urban ecology, sports, entertainment, the environment, and the arts.

The school advises its students to participate in at least two internships. Annenberg's Career Development Office has listings for paid and unpaid internships from around the country. All journalism majors are encouraged to write and report for the student newspaper, the Daily Trojan. Broadcast majors also should plan to write and report for the three student-produced programs run by the school: Annenberg TV News, Annenberg Radio News and the "Impact" newsmagazine show. All students should consider the Web journalism opportunities available with the Online Journalism Review, which is published by the school.

Undergraduate Degrees

The School of Journalism offers Bachelor of Arts degrees in Print Journalism, Broadcast Journalism and Public Relations. The school also offers minors in Advertising and News Media and Society. Journalism students are encouraged to pursue double majors or minors in other areas of study. They must consult with an undergraduate journalism advisor at least once each semester to receive academic advisement covering major course selection and university degree requirements.

A grade point average of at least C (2.0) on all baccalaureate units attempted at USC, as well as on the combined USC-transfer GPA, is required for undergraduate degrees. A minimum cumulative grade point average of 2.0 in all attempted upper division courses for the major is also required. Students must complete each journalism class with at least a grade of C- in order to count the course toward a major requirement. Journalism courses with a grade of D+ or below must be repeated; courses may only be retaken once.

General Education Requirements

The university's general education program provides coherent, integrated introduction to the breadth of knowledge you will need to consider yourself (and to be considered by other people) a generally well-educated person. This program requires six courses in different categories, plus writing, foreign language and diversity requirements, which together comprise the USC Core. See pages 60 and 231 for more information.

Core Curriculum

The School of Journalism's core curriculum prepares students to write and report for print, broadcast and online media. Print journalism, broadcast journalism and public relations students are required to complete both print and broadcast newswriting classes. Journalism majors are also required to complete print and broadcast reporting classes.

Print journalism majors must complete a newspaper editing and design class; broadcast journalism majors must complete a broadcast production class. In addition to the online media elements integrated into the newswriting and reporting classes, print journalism and broadcast journalism majors must complete an introduction to online media course.

Grammar, Punctuation and Spelling Examination (GPSE) Requirement

Journalism and public relations majors enrolling in the core newswriting classes will take a diagnostic exam at the beginning of the semester to prepare for the Grammar, Punctuation and Spelling Examination (GPSE). The core newswriting instructors will administer the GPSE during final examination week.

Students who do not pass the GPSE may re-take the exam in the spring semester immediately following their enrollment in core newswriting. The GPSE will be offered on two dates in the spring term — the first week in February and the week of spring final examinations. (Students will be notified of the exam dates at the start of the spring semester.)

Students must pass the GPSE by the completion of the spring semester or they will not be allowed to progress in the School of Journalism and will be dismissed from the major.

Note: Students with disabilities may register with the Disabilities Services and Programs office (DSP) so the DSP staff can assess the nature of the students' disabilities and recommend the appropriate accommodations to be provided for each student.

Advertising Minor

The Advertising minor is designed for students interested in building a career in, or developing a better understanding of, the field of advertising. It explores the key role played by advertising in today's global economy. At no time has advertising been more successful or more controversial than it is today, and this program will explore both the positives and the negatives. Emphasis is placed throughout the program on both the practical skills required to meet the demands of the marketplace and the theoretical underpinnings of those practices. Program content includes: the history of advertising; creation of written and visual advertising elements; the measurement, selection and analysis of media; the concept of "branding;" the role of advertising in creating and maintaining successful brands; the analysis of advertising campaign case studies; and the creation of integrated marketing communications campaigns.

News Media and Society Minor

News Media and Society is a journalism minor that explores the responsibilities, the influence, the ethics and the diversity of the news media. It explodes the myths about news media in the United States and explains what the news media are, how they work, what they do wrong and what they do right, and why they are important to a society whose citizens depend on the free and unfettered flow of information. This minor will help all students in all majors to understand one of the most important and misunderstood forces in American society: the news media.

News Media and Society benefits every student at the university because it gives students a new appreciation and understanding of the news media that so much influence their lives on a daily basis.

Minor in Nonprofits, Philanthropy and Volunteerism

This four course minor enables students to learn about the nonprofit sector – its organizations, philanthropy and voluntary action. See complete description in the School of Policy, Planning, and Development section on page 818.

Annenberg International Programs

Spring Semester in London (City University School of Journalism)

The semester program offers students the opportunity to study at the City University School of Journalism in London. Participants will be close observers of the British media and will have an opportunity for personal and direct comparison between the more structured and governmental controlled media system of the United Kingdom and the laissez faire approach to media regulation in the United States. Students earn 16 USC credits; 8 units will count toward Journalism major credit.

International Communication Studies — London, Paris, Prague and Geneva

The International Communication Studies program (ICS) allows undergraduate students to study a range of approaches to public communication media across Europe.

Students divide the five-week course into stays in Los Angeles, London, Paris, Prague and Geneva. In addition to regular class meetings, students discuss the interplay of current world issues and international media practices with communication practitioners from international news and public relations media, government institutions, private industry and global organizations.

Students enroll in JOUR 482 Comparative Media in Europe (4 units) and JOUR 499 Applied Journalism Studies in Global Media (2 units) or COMM 499 Applied Communication Studies in Global Media (2 units) for a total of 6 units.

For further information, contact Annenberg International Programs at (213) 821-2180 or erskine@usc.edu.

Honor Society

Lambda Pi Eta is a national communication/journalism honor society that is open to declared majors who have completed at least 32 units (minimum 3.0 GPA), 12 of which are in the major (minimum 3.25 GPA).

Admission

Admission is competitive. Fall 2006 incoming freshmen had an average GPA of 4.07 with a middle 50% SAT score of 1953-2150. Transfer students had an average GPA of 3.66. Transfer students must submit high school transcripts, statement of intent, faculty recommendation and USC undergraduate application. The School of Journalism does not accept units for journalism course work taken at other institutions to fulfill degree, major or minor requirements. For students applying to USC, refer to the USC Application for Undergraduate Admission for application deadlines and the Annenberg Web site for transfer guidelines.

Students currently enrolled at USC who wish to change their major to journalism must file a formal application with all supporting documents through the Annenberg Student Services Office. Supporting documents include: completed School of Journalism application form (for current USC students only); completed change/addition of major form; statement of intent; one writing sample; and sealed letters of recommendation. For current USC students, the application deadline is at the end of the first week of classes in the fall and spring semesters.

Students must complete at least one semester of USC course work to be eligible to apply. It takes a minimum of five semesters from the time of admission to the program – starting in a fall semester – to complete the major requirements.

Academic Integrity Policy

Since its founding, the USC School of Journalism has maintained a commitment to the highest standards of ethical conduct and academic excellence. Any student found guilty of plagiarism, fabrication, cheating on examinations, or purchasing papers or other assignments will receive a failing grade in the course and will be dismissed from the School of Journalism. There are no exceptions to the school's policy.

Graduate Degrees

The School of Journalism offers three Master of Arts degree programs: Journalism, Specialized Journalism and Strategic Public Relations. Students completing the M.A. in Journalism will choose one of three emphases: print, broadcast or online. The Print Journalism emphasis is for students interested in newspaper and magazine journalism. Students may develop their special areas of interest through the selection of elective courses. The Broadcast Journalism emphasis is for those students interested in television news, public affairs and documentary programming. The curriculum is similar to the Print Journalism emphasis with the focus shifted to the development of writing and production skills for the broadcast media. The Online Journalism emphasis is for students interested in online journalism and new media. The Specialized Journalism degree is designed for mid-career professionals and recent journalism graduates interested in developing specialized reporting expertise. The Strategic Public Relations degree is designed to train students for management-level public relations and communication positions in all types of public and private sector organizations.

Admission Requirements

Prerequisites

An applicant must have a bachelor's degree from an accredited college or university.

Criteria

Minimum criteria for consideration are a 3.0 GPA for undergraduate work and all graduate work, and a score of 550-verbal and 1000-cumulative (verbal and quantitative) on the GRE General Test. International applicants are required to take the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) and should receive a score of at least 650 on the paper-based exam or a score of 280 on the computer-based exam or 114-115 on the Internet-based exam. Applicants are strongly encouraged to take the Graduate Record Examinations prior to November 1.

In addition, applicants are judged on a statement of purpose explaining why they wish to pursue graduate studies in journalism or public relations, an essay and three letters of recommendation submitted on their behalf. Professional experience in journalism and/or communication is also considered. Applicants must submit a résumé and one sample of their writing for review.

Procedure

Applicants must submit the following materials to the USC Office of Admission: USC application for graduate admission with a non-refundable application fee, official GRE scores and official transcripts from all colleges and universities attended. In addition, international applicants must submit an affidavit of support and official TOEFL scores.

In addition, applicants must submit the following materials: statement of purpose, one writing sample, a journalism or public relations essay, a résumé and three letters of recommendation. International applicants must submit TOEFL test scores.

The School of Journalism admits students to the M.A. in Journalism and the M.A. in Strategic Public Relations degree programs for the fall semester. The application deadline for admission and department scholarship/assistantship consideration is January 15. Students usually receive notification of the Admission Committee's decision by March 31. The School of Journalism admits students to the M.A. in Specialized Journalism degree program for the summer session. The application deadline for summer admission is May 1.

Degree Requirements

These degrees are under the jurisdiction of the Graduate School. Refer to the Requirements for Graduation section (page 81) and the Graduate School section of this catalog (page 91) for general regulations. All course work applied toward a degree must be approved by the School of Journalism and the Graduate School.

Master of Arts

Studies toward the Master of Arts in Journalism and the Master of Arts in Strategic Public Relations require 40 units of prescribed courses and approved electives in the student's field of study. Students may take, with prior approval, two of their electives outside the school. No more than 12 units of 400-level course work may be applied toward the master's degree in journalism and the master's degree in strategic public relations. Studies toward the master's degree in specialized journalism require 34 units of prescribed courses and approved electives. No more than 10 units of 400-level course work may be applied toward the master's degree in specialized journalism.

A GPA of 3.0 must be maintained for all work. Students who fall below a 3.0 grade point average will be placed on academic probation and must improve according to established terms if they are to remain in the school. In the case of courses offered on Credit/No Credit (CR/NC) basis, faculty review of competence will be substituted for grades.

Residence

The School of Journalism will accept only 4 units of approved transferred graduate credit. Normally, full-time students in the Master of Arts in Journalism and the Master of Arts in Strategic Public Relations can complete the program in four semesters. The Master of Arts in Specialized Journalism can be completed in a 10-month summer session, fall and spring semester enrollment cycle. These programs may be attended on a part-time basis.

Foreign Language/Research Tool Requirements

There is no foreign language or research tool requirement for the master's degree.

Course Requirements

A master's degree in journalism requires 40 units and a master's degree in strategic public relations requires 40 units. To graduate, students may elect the thesis or comprehensive examination option. Students electing the thesis option are required to enroll in JOUR 594ab (2-2 units). A master's degree in specialized journalism requires 34 units. Specialized journalism students must complete the professional project thesis option and enroll in JOUR 594ab (2-2 units).

Grammar, Punctuation and Spelling Examination (GPSE) Requirement

Journalism and strategic public relations graduate students are required to take a diagnostic exam at the Journalism Graduate Student Orientation in August to prepare for the Grammar, Punctuation and Spelling Examination (GPSE). Journalism and strategic public relations students will take the GPSE in their first semester of enrollment during final examination week.

Graduate students who do not pass the GPSE may retake the exam the following spring semester. The GPSE will be offered on two dates in the spring term — the first week in February and the week of spring final examinations. (Students will be notified of the exam dates at the start of the spring semester).

Graduate students must pass the GPSE by the completion of their second semester of enrollment or they will not be allowed to progress in the program and will be dismissed from the School of Journalism.

Note: Students with disabilities may register with the Disabilities Services and Programs office (DSP) so the DSP staff can assess the nature of the students' disabilities and recommend the appropriate accommodations to be provided for each student.

Thesis/Comprehensive Examination

The thesis option will take one of two forms: (1) a professional project presenting the results of an extensive print, broadcast, public relations or new media project completed by the student; or (2) a research thesis presenting the results of primary research undertaken by the student. In either case, students must establish a guidance committee of three tenure-track members, chaired by a faculty member from the School of Journalism. At least two of these members must be on the faculty of the School of Journalism; one may be a faculty member from another school or department. Students must secure approval of the professional project or thesis prior to enrollment in JOUR 594a. Students who elect the thesis option are required to enroll in JOUR 594ab (2-2 units), normally during their second year of study. The 4 units will count toward the approved elective units.

The comprehensive examination option allows students to complete the degree by passing a comprehensive examination in their last semester of course work. The comprehensive examination option is not available to students in the specialized journalism degree program.

New Media Core Curriculum

Students enrolled in the Master of Arts in Journalism are required to take 9 units of New Media Core courses (JOUR 501, JOUR 502, JOUR 503) in their first year. These courses provide intensive preparation considered necessary for graduate studies in journalism at USC. At the end of each New Media Core course, students will be given a comprehensive skills test that must be passed.

In the 21st century it is imperative that all journalists understand the basic techniques of writing, reporting and production for all the new media in print, broadcast and online journalism. Upon graduation, students will be routinely expected to function in all new media, being able to report and write stories for a media corporation's newspaper, Web site, and radio and television broadcasts, and to do this while covering a single story. The 9-unit New Media Core ensures every student has a background in all media before completing the more advanced courses in the 40-unit Master of Arts in Journalism. The three courses are:

JOUR 501 (3 units) is designed to teach the student basic news writing and ethical framework for print, broadcast and online. The print segment includes basic news writing, news judgment, construction of print news stories. The broadcast segment includes an introduction to broadcast news writing with the emphasis on the ear and eye, creation of audio statements and creation of video elements. The online segment includes an introduction to online writing with an emphasis on context and relationship of topics and subjects to the story.

JOUR 502 (3 units) is designed to teach the student basic production and ethical framework for print, broadcast and online. The print segment includes copyediting and newspaper production layout, headline and caption writing and design. The broadcast segment includes studio and field production for radio and television and use of tape recorders and camcorders to produce simple field pieces. The online segment includes database creation and management, online journalism production and Web production.

JOUR 503 (3 units) is designed to teach the student basic reporting and ethical framework for print, broadcast and online. The print segment includes basic reporting techniques, public records reporting and beginning pieces of investigative journalism. The broadcast segment includes field reporting, radio and audio media, TV and other visual media. The online segment includes computer assisted reporting and precision reporting including statistics.

The Master of Arts in Specialized Journalism is a reporting program focusing on mid-career professionals who are choosing to specialize in education, religion, science or urban ecology. The program is also open to recent journalism school graduates with records of excellence in their university classes and internships and to other outstanding applicants with demonstrated aptitude and expertise in journalism.

Students must begin the program in early August, enrolling in a required 2-unit, intensive two-week summer session course focused on journalism and society. In addition to the formal classes, the course includes noontime discussions and workshops as integral parts. This gateway course provides the master's students with a working knowledge of the specialized journalism background necessary for study in the program and sets the stage for a year of access to courses as substantively broad as a major research university such as USC makes available.

In the fall semester, students will enroll in a research methods course for journalists and a reporting seminar course in the area of education, religion, science or urban ecology.

With the advice of their faculty mentors, students will select elective course work totaling 8 units appropriate to their fields of specialization. These courses will be drawn from regular graduate and 400-level courses taught across the university and will require approval of a three-member committee composed of the faculty mentor in the School of Journalism, another member of the journalism faculty and a faculty member from the relevant discipline. Students will also begin research for their master's professional project. These projects may be full-length magazine (print or broadcast) treatments of issues in their field or similar professional work.

In the spring semester, students will enroll in a journalism course focused on the reporting and analysis of decision making and a directed research course, growing out of the fall seminar in specialized reporting. Students will enroll in elective course work totaling 8 units, chosen again from offerings across the university and in consultation with the mentors and approved by a three-member committee. Finally, students will complete their master's professional project.

The 10-month program has been designed for a summer session, fall and spring semester enrollment cycle; however, students may also elect to complete the program on a part-time basis.

Annenberg International Programs*Graduate Journalism Internships — United Kingdom, Hong Kong or South Africa*

Journalism master's degree students may spend eight weeks at internships in London, Hong Kong or Cape Town during the summer after their first year of graduate study at USC. Students apply to Annenberg International Programs in the fall semester of their first year and accepted students enroll in JOUR 540 International Journalism Seminar I during the spring semester. From mid-May to mid-July, they then enroll in JOUR 542 Foreign Reporting and JOUR 543 Field Study while working full-time at internships with prominent media organizations.

For more information, contact Annenberg International Programs at (213) 821-2180 or erskine@usc.edu.
